Music is their first love...

MAKING a living from music is the ambition of many youngsters and a special event at New River Studios, in Eade Road, Harringay, on Friday showed there are plenty of opportunities to fulfil that dream.

An all-star line-up of industry professionals including talent scout and BBC Radio 1Xtra's DJ Semtex, as well as Alec Boateng, A&R man for Atlantic Records, gave help and encouragement to young musicians and technicians who want to make a career out of music.

The day-long event included talks on radio presenting, music licensing and publishing, songwriting, being a session musician and how record labels work.

Building threat to Lordship Rec lifted

FEARS over a potential threat to Tottenham's Lordship Recreation Ground have been allayed after the council bowed to public pressure and withdrew draft plans for homes to be built on part of it.

Proposals identifying 100 sites for redevelopment over the next 20 years in a Haringey Council draft planning strategy document included the 1,400-home Broadwater Farm estate, adjacent to the recreation ground, along with a map suggesting the north of the park could be incorporated.

Although there were no firm plans and the consultation document looked at broad options, the potential threat it posed provoked public outrage.

But council chiefs bowed to pressure last week and withdrew the recreation ground in Lordship Lane from the next stage of its consultation after receiving more than 600 responses from concerned residents.

Ali Demirci, cabinet member for planning, said: "Residents have been clear that they don't want to explore the idea of any development on the rec, which is why we'll be removing it completely from the final policy."

"As the new proposals make clear, we still want Broadwater Farm residents' views on what they like and don't like about the estate and what the best options are in the long term to give families a better quality of life."

"With London facing a housing crisis, it's important we explore every option to look at where we can build the modern, high-quality homes that Haringey needs to help those struggling to find an affordable place to live."

Any of the sites earmarked for development in the proposals will be subject to the full planning process when any application is made, adds the council. Consultation with Broadwater Farm estate residents on what improvements they would like to see will begin before the end of the year.

WHISTLE IS BLOWN ON BADGE CHEATS

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

UNSCRUPULOUS football fans have been caught illegally displaying blue badges in their cars on Spurs match days so they can park nearer the ground.

The fraudsters were nabbed by Haringey Council enforcement officers in a series of operations this season in roads surrounding Tottenham Hotspur's White Hart Lane stadium, where parking restrictions operate during home games.

Blue badges are issued to people with mobility problems or disabilities and allow the driver to park on double yellow lines or in specialist bays closer to their destination.

They cannot be used or loaned to anyone else.

The council crackdown followed reports that blue badges were being misused. Tougher parking restrictions are in place on Spurs' match days because of the high volume of traffic caused by supporters travelling by car to the ground.

During one enforcement operation by the council, one driver was found using a badge which belonged to a deceased relative and another had already been reported as lost.

Stuart McNamara, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "Blue badges are there to help those in need and it is unacceptable that they are abused by people who don't need them, just so that they have a convenient place to park."

"We are determined to crack down on this behaviour at locations where we hear it is happening and will continue to work to ensure that the behaviour of a selfish few does not impact on our most vulnerable residents."

□ Ten fans were arrested following disturbances after Arsenal's 2-1 League Cup win over Spurs at White Hart Lane on Wednesday evening last week.

Crackdown: Council officers swooped on football fans illegally using blue badges to park near Spurs' ground

Police and stewards were forced to intervene after a section of away supporters in the corner of the South Stand ripped down hoardings featuring Tottenham club slogans.

There were also reports of clashes between rival fans outside the stadium.

Police said the arrests were for offences including assault and criminal damage.

Protest over bid to build on green belt

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS concerned at proposals to build hundreds of homes and a new school on green belt land held a high-profile protest over the weekend.

Developers Fairview Homes have made it public that they want to submit a planning application to Enfield Council for 300 homes and an eight form-entry secondary free school, with a four form-entry sixth-form college, on the south side of Enfield Road, opposite Trent Park.

Fairview Homes has yet to submit formal plans, but made a formal request for a scoping opinion – a test of whether the site can support the demands hundreds of houses and a school would place on the land.

The developers also organised a series of public exhibitions of the plans in St Peter's Church, in Vera Avenue, Grange Park, on Friday, Saturday and Monday.

The plans show how the homes and school would be, in theory, organised on the site.

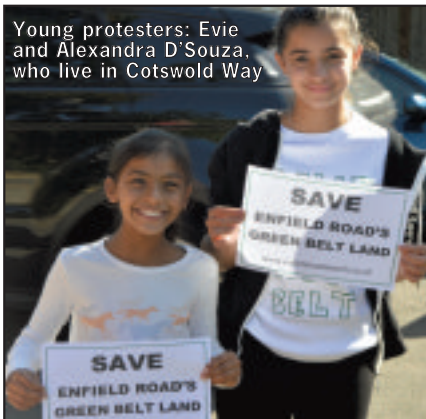

Maria Turner, of the campaign to stop the developers from taking away the green space, who was one of a group of residents protesting outside the church on Saturday, said: "I told representatives from Fairview that I have two particular concerns about this process.

"Firstly, the residents of Cotswold Way, whose houses back on to the development, did not receive leaflets publicising this exhibition – even though people living much further away did.

"Secondly, in the newsletter sent to households in August it stated they had determined this was the best site after working closely with the council.

"However, I put in a freedom of information request to the council which came back saying that any determination of whether the site would be suitable had been done entirely by Fairview."

Young protesters: Evie and Alexandra D'Souza, who live in Cotswold Way

An online petition to protect the site on the website www.change.org has already gained 2,018 signatures. Maria added: "I think it's now clear, Fairview Homes are not as fair as they are making out."

A spokeswoman from the developers said: "Fairview New Homes used information publicly available from Enfield Council's website to undertake assessments of the Enfield Road site.

"This is in response to the overwhelming need for a new eight form-entry school by 2018 for children living in the central and western parts of the borough.

"The leaflet inviting people to the exhibition was sent to more than 17,000 households and businesses in Enfield. We received GPS data confirming invitation leaflets were hand-delivered to the properties in Cotswold Way."

School show starts Black History month

YOUNG artists are launching this year's Black History Month with an exhibition featuring prominent figures on the world stage.

The Black Canvas show has been created by students from Winchmore School, in Laburnum Grove, Winchmore Hill.

Their work includes US president Barack Obama, supermodel Naomi Campbell, newsreader Moira Stewart and top tennis player Serena Williams.

Others featured in the line-up at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield, include athlete Usain Bolt, musician Louis Armstrong, comedian Lenny Henry, actor Rudolph Walker and boxer Muhammad Ali.

The show runs until Saturday, October 31.

Now in its 28th year, Black History Month also includes a touring exhibition, The Empire Needs Men, examining the African perspective on World War I.

The display opened at Enfield Town Library, in Church Street, on Monday and continues until October 18. It then moves to Edmonton Green Library, in South Mall, from October 20 to 31.

This Saturday, a mobile cinema will visit Edmonton Green Shopping Centre from 11am to 3pm screening archive films of the area.

Ziggy's World Jazz Club at the Dugdale Centre next Wednesday features singer and storyteller Jumoke Fashola and her musicians. Tickets cost £13.50 online at www.dugdalecentre.co.uk and £14.40 at the box office on 020 8807 6680. It starts at 7.45pm.

Other highlights of the month include Ballet Black's triple bill of work, including a new work Second Coming, inspired by Yeats' 1919 poem and Grimms' fairy tales.

Hair today, gone tomorrow

Before: Kevin Buckingham's long locks

First haircut in nine years helps raise £1,000

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A LONG-HAIRED pub regular lost his locks for charity last week as he became a "brave shaver".

Kevin Buckingham submitted to the hairdresser's scissors in front of regulars at The Lamb, in Church Street, Edmonton, on Friday.

The Enfield Lock resident agreed to the drastic new look to raise money at a Macmillan Cancer Support coffee morning the pub hosted.

Hairdresser Laura Daly took just a few minutes to cut off his hair off, which had reached halfway down Mr Buckingham's back with a long ponytail. She finished off the transformation with clippers and a razor.

Former bus driver and trained forklift truck driver Mr Buckingham had not previously had a haircut for nine years.

The 42-year-old volunteered for the drastic haircut to raise money for Macmillan because he knows people who have benefited from its work supporting people with cancer.

He said: "It was good fun. It didn't take long to cut it all off."

"I've suggested they should sponsor me to grow it back."

The Salisbury Road resident added: "It took seconds to cut my hair off. They took my ponytail off first. Then I heard the scissors."

The Macmillan coffee morning was the idea of Jennifer Daly, who works in the pub and recruited her sister as a barber for the event.

As well as Mr Buckingham's haircut, pub regular Pickles also had his head shaved.

Between them the pair say they've raised nearly £1,000 for the charity.

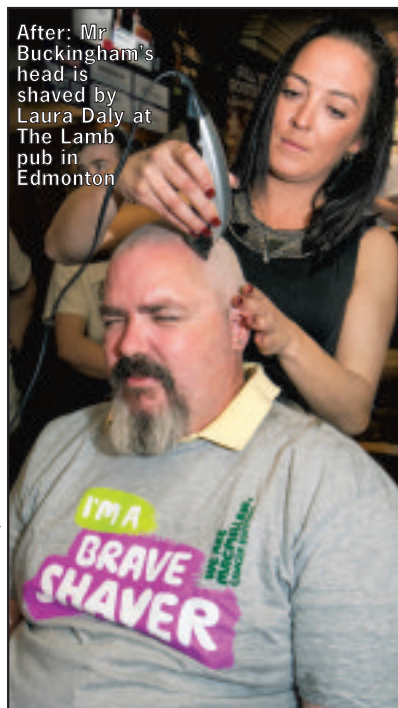

The Lamb's landlady Anne-Marie Hunt said: "We thought it would be a nice think to hold the coffee morning."

"Kevin had volunteered himself and Pickles also had his head shaved."

"People were generous with their sponsorship."

Later in the day the pub hosted a race night in aid of Prostate Cancer UK to raise money for the charity's research into the disease, which affects only men. The event raised £305.

People can still donate money for both charities at the pub.

Steps in the night direction

A VOLUNTEER for charities in Enfield has completed a hat-trick of marathon night-time walks through London raising £4,500 for Cancer Research UK.

Jeff Hecker completed his third 26.2-mile route through the capital's streets at the weekend. He is a trustee of Enfield Citizens' Advice Bureau and of Enfield Community Transport, which provides transport for community groups in the borough.

Twice a week the 67-year-old also volunteers with the Beanstalk charity to help primary schoolchildren in Enfield learn to read.

Mr Hecker started volunteering in schools last year to give one-to-one literacy support for children. He said: "Volunteering for three organisations providing valuable services for people in Enfield has certainly enhanced my retirement from my career in IT."

This was the third consecutive year he has completed Cancer Research's Shine Night Walk. He was joined by his son Paul, 30, who also took part last year, and the duo completed event in nine hours and 45 minutes. Father and son stayed together to cross the finish line at Old Billingsgate at 6.45am on Sunday.

Mr Hecker, of Melbourne Way, Bush Hill Park, went to watch Spurs play before joining thousands of others on the walk, which took in some of the key sites of London.

They passed iconic buildings including St Paul's Cathedral, the British Museum and the Houses of Parliament.

Mr Hecker added that he was inspired to raise money as he knew people with cancer.

He said: "I was so pleased to complete the hat-trick, but it's the generous donations made to such a worthy cause that are what really matter and should be celebrated."

Sponsor Mr Hecker by visiting the www.justgiving.com/jeffhecker2015 website.

Grandad, 75, still toughing it out

A GRANDAD with sciatica is convinced that the elixir of youth can be down the local park, but its price is blood sweat and tears.

Mike Hart, 75, of Palmers Green, is a grandfather-of-two, decided five years ago it was time to limber up if he wanted to keep up with his two grandchildren.

The former biomedical scientist thought he might need something a little more challenging, so he signed up for a British Military Fitness class in Trent Park.

With sciatica and high blood pressure to contend with, the outdoor training in snow, wind and rain was the least of Mike's worries – but he reveals that the training improved his health.

"My muscle strength has improved greatly," he said.

"The instructors said my running has come along well. I also get fewer colds and my blood pressure is now good whereas a few years ago it was high."

After working up his strength and stamina with his Enfield team, Mike felt ready for the next step – the toughest Military Fitness class in north London at Alexandra Palace, including hill sprints and hardcore workouts on the steep slopes of Alexandra Park.

"The sessions can be a little tough," he admitted.

"But I soon get into my stride, and always have such a good time."

"There's no better feeling than exercising in outdoors with your friends. I'd encourage anyone to give it a go, whatever your age."

Mike is calling on other pensioners to give the workout a try if they fancy an active retirement.

Delight and despair as options for cycling go on display

Unconvinced: Jennifer Williams is talked through the plans by Paul Rogers, from Enfield Council's environment department

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AFTER a week of increasingly bitter arguments over plans to transform Green Lanes into a haven for cyclists, the council has launched a consultation on its plans for the Enfield Town element of the Cycle Enfield scheme.

Residents, cyclists and business owners browsed boards in a conference room in the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield, on Friday, describing the two options on the table for the re-design of Enfield Town.

One option involves only eastbound buses being allowed on Church Street while the opposite side of the road will be given over to a two-way cycle lane. No cars will be able to use Church Street and the current car parking spaces will be given over to loading bays.

The other option will see both east and westbound buses allowed along Church Street with a lane for cyclists through the centre of the road.

Chris Cook, 26, from Oakwood, a cyclist who commutes by bike to work in Enfield, said: "In general, I think the plans are really good."

"The route around Enfield Town will be really good because the current one-way system is a nightmare for cyclists as it involves lots of changes between lanes of traffic."

However, Caroline Carter of the Enfield Town Conservation Area study group, was disappointed with the options on offer.

"We were hoping for a solution that slowed down the traffic through the town," she said.

"We were hoping for some sort of scheme where cars and bikes and buses would share the space and that would make cars slow down because they would be looking out for bikes and pedestrians."

"At the minute there is no night-time economy on Church Street and the council wants to improve that, but how is that going to happen if there is no traffic allowed to flow along that street?"

Bush Hill Park resident Jennifer Williams, who lives in Park Avenue, expressed her opinion that the current one-way system "works as well as anything can work, given the limitations".

She added: "I like the town the way it is. Along Green Lanes and London Road, the council is proposing to get rid of the pinch-point crossing points and replace them with zebra crossings where you have to wait for traffic to stop in both directions. It is putting the safety of the majority of people at risk for the sake of a few people dressed in Lycra."

However, 19-year-old Tom Mellor, who is a regular cyclist in and around Enfield Town, said that while he welcomed anything that would make cycling safer he admitted he had deep reservations about the plans, particularly concerning the bus stop boarders, where passengers get off directly into a cycle path – forcing cyclists to either brake suddenly or potentially take risks by trying to overtake buses without being able to see what is approaching from the opposite direction.

"The council says this is necessary because there isn't room to have passengers disembark on to an island or straight on to the pavement," he said.

"However, I have looked at the measurements and think it would be possible if they did not have two bus stops directly opposite each other on either side of the road."

...and many show their anger at public meeting

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

HUNDREDS of people vented their fury over Cycle Enfield plans at a meeting organised by one of the borough's MPs on Monday night.

David Burrowes, the Conservative MP for Enfield Southgate, set up the public meeting in conjunction with the Save Our Green Lanes campaign group in the Revival Christian Church of Enfield, in London Road.

The meeting was billed as a chance for members of the public to express their views on Enfield Council's proposals to boost cycling in the borough.

At the moment residents in Palmers Green, Enfield Town and Southbury Road are being consulted by the local authority on plans to improve cycling infrastructure funded by the £30million grant the council won from the Mayor of London's office two years ago.

In recent weeks there has been a groundswell of opposition to the scheme among residents and particularly among business owners who are adamant that shops will fail without adequate on-street parking for customers.

Mr Burrowes chaired Monday night's meeting and the panel was made up of Andrew Gilligan, the mayor's cycling tsar; Adrian Lachlan, London Cycling Campaign's Enfield co-ordinator; a representative from the company who drew up the Cycle Enfield proposals for the council; Helen Osman, one of the leaders of the Save Our Green Lanes campaign; Erdal Mehmet, owner of the G Mantella jewellers, in Church Street, Enfield; Conservative councillor for Grange ward Andy Milne; and a representative from Enfield Residents' Association.

Mr Gilligan told those who gathered in the church: "I stood on Church Street and I thought what a great place it could be. I thought what a huge amount of potential – there is a cobbled marketplace and beautiful buildings.

"When it is quiet, you can see the lovely old country town Enfield was – that is a very precious thing.

"This scheme isn't really about cycling, it's about making the marketplace the hub of the town. It is about keeping the town centre alive – roughly 20 per cent of shops in Enfield Town are vacant."

To the vocal disapproval of those present, he said that town centres are changing as people would inevitably drive to retail parks, where it is free and easy to park, as well as easy to get to.

"The only way town centres will survive is by playing to their strengths," he added. "You have to make it a nice shopping environment so that people want to come here."

Mrs Osman told the meeting: "Cycle Enfield has not thought about the people who will lose their parking.

"They only put a letter through their doors to say that there was going to be an exhibition, but they didn't have the decency to tell them directly that they would be losing their on-street parking."

Opposing views: Helen Osman and Andrew Gilligan, two of the panellists

Mr Mehmet echoed her concerns, saying: "It is very difficult to go shopping in Enfield Town and ride a bike at the same time."

Mr Milne announced that the Tory group would "only support this if there's genuine public support for it".

After short presentations from the panellists, the floor was opened to the public.

Chris Jephcott, president of the Enfield Society, said: "The development of Enfield Town is something local planners should develop, not people playing outside their role."

There were voices in favour of the scheme, but by and large they were drowned out by the vehemence of residents and businesses owners opposed to the scheme.

What a difference

TIME has altered some views of Enfield as these shots from the archives show, compared with pictures taken 50 years later by our photographer Anne-Marie Sanderson.

As the London Borough of Enfield celebrates the 50th anniversary of its creation, the new photo of the civic centre (above) – just minutes away from Enfield Town – shows that the council's emblem remains on its pedestal, but the entrance pillars have been removed.

The first stage two-storey part of the then new civic centre comprised a council chamber, committee rooms and office space as the headquarters of the local authority moved from Gentlemen's Row.

A 1957 competition to design it was won by Eric G Broughton, who was also the man behind the modern brutalist Harrow Civic Centre.

The building was later joined by the adjacent tower block on the site of the two-storey Portcullis House.

The addition of trees and planters has softened the view of the building in Silver Street and gardens are a popular sunspot for officer workers in their lunch breaks.

An area around the drinking fountain in Enfield Town has been pedestrianised to the left of the photo, right. The 1884 fountain was restored in 1994.

Barclays Bank, on the right of the photo, replaced The Greyhound pub in 1897 and in 1967 it became famous for the unveiling of the world's first ATM

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as when we arrived. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.' So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

ENFIELD Council

New look for children's services

CHANGES to children's centres are being launched after Enfield Council reorganised the service.

Four central hubs will oversee support services for 20,000 families with children aged four and under.

The hubs are based at Raynham Primary School, in Raynham Avenue, Edmonton; Hazelbury Learning Community, based in Haselbury Road, Edmonton; Eldon Primary School, in Eldon Road, Edmonton; and De Bohun Primary School, in Green Road, Southgate.

Cabinet member for education, children's services and protection Ayfer Orhan said: "Each hub is responsible for a cluster of centres within their part of the borough."

She said the reorganisation followed a public consultation and brought together a "highly skilled workforce providing excellent universal services" across Enfield under strong leadership from headteachers at the hub centres.

She added: "It means that wherever parents live the core programme focuses on health and well-being, parenting, speech and language, children with special needs and disabilities and issues relating to child poverty and advising and informing parents who need assistance."

Children's services help prepare youngsters for school and free places funded by the Department for Education are on offer for eligible families with two-year-olds, she said.

First-time parents can join six consecutive baby talk sessions which focus on how babies learn to communicate.

There are also new baby and parents' sessions where speech and language therapists, money advisers and health volunteers help provide support for new parents.

The sessions will include opportunities to meet the children's centre health visitor, sing baby rhymes, and learn about nutrition and giving children a healthy diet. Other subjects which will be covered are immunisation and family health, positive parenting tips and play.

Ms Orhan added: "We are very proud of the work going on in our centres where parents can get a head start on health, education and learning for their families."

Double trouble: Rachel Yates and Joseph Morton play all 14 parts in Chickenshed Theatre's new production of Two

Chickenshed play is going down the pub

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WE have all tried not to eargwig on those rows that erupt between couples in pubs late at night after an alcohol-soaked evening.

But Chickenshed's latest offering, Two, will not allow audiences to study their shoes or catch up on phone admin as seven couples pass in front of the audience, venting their spleen at one another.

With a painstakingly detailed pub set, donated to the theatre, in Chase Side, Southgate, by The George, in Enfield Town, after its latest refit earlier this year, director and actress Rachel Yates hopes that audiences will become entirely immersed in the spectacle of a couple arguing in their watering hole.

Rachel told the Advertiser how she had always wanted to stage the play since seeing it during her student days and fell in love with the way the writing captured a particular time and place in recent history.

She said: "The play is set in the north of England in 1989 and I wanted to keep it as set in that period as that year in a lot of ways was a real turning point. You had the emerging music scene and club culture of Manchester.

"In the north especially at that time there was a real change after a difficult period and the writing really captures that."

Rachel explained that the production would be a very different experience for audience members as the actors talk directly to them rather as if they are real-life punters.

Although 14 characters pass through the set, every part is played by just two actors, Rachel and her co-star Joseph Morton.

She said: "There is a whole show going on backstage with the quick changes and it is quite a challenge sometimes remembering which character you are playing next."

Rachel admits that directing and acting in the demanding two-hander is "incredibly challenging".

"It is also challenging directing myself," she added. "Usually when I direct I am outside looking on and thinking very visually about what is going on. However, for this, it is a different kind of perspective."

Two will run from October 7 to October 24 and tickets are available from Chickenshed's box office on 020 8292 9222.

Hospital trust is seeking £82m for new Chase Farm

Step closer: David Sloman, Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust's chief executive

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

HEALTH chiefs have moved one step closer to finalising plans for a multi-million-pound new hospital on the Chase Farm site.

The Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust is planning on selling some of the land surrounding the current hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and will build an entirely new facility on a smaller section of the sprawling 39-acre site.

While some of the cost of the new hospital will be generated from the sale of the land for housing and a new primary school, the trust needs £82million from government coffers.

A spokesman from the Royal Free told the Advertiser that the trust had now submitted its pitch for money to the government after the board approved the business case. Once the case for the new hospital is approved by government health bosses, the trust will be one step closer to locking down the money.

The Royal Free's chief executive David Sloman said: "This brings us another step closer to securing the funds we need to transform Chase Farm into a hospital that is fit for modern healthcare and will help us deliver world-class care to the local community for many years to come."

While waiting for the final government go-ahead, the trust will be submitting new planning applications for the hospital building to Enfield Council to speed up the process of the revamp.

The trust is encouraging residents of the area concerned about the impact of the new housing, school and hospital to look at the plans for the site at www.royalfree.nhs.uk/chasefarm

Anxiety grows for man who went missing six weeks ago

POLICE are increasingly concerned for a missing man last seen more than six weeks ago when he left his home to go to work in Enfield.

Urban Atkins, 40, disappeared on Saturday, August 15, after leaving his home in Amhurst Road, Hackney.

He was reported missing by his family three days later on August 18 after they became very concerned for his welfare.

Mr Atkins has gone missing before, but this has been the longest time he has gone without any contact with his family.

He is described as 5ft 8ins, black, of medium build, with short, dark, afro-style hair and a black beard.

When last seen by his family, he was dressed in black cargo trousers, a high-visibility safety vest and a fleece top.

He is known to have links to the Enfield area, Croydon and Wandsworth, in south London.

Anyone who has any information on his whereabouts can call police in Hackney via 101, quoting reference 15MIS037063, or contact the Missing People charity on 116000.

Missing: Urban Atkins has not been since leaving home to go to work on August 15

We should be concentrating on Syria talks

THE UK government and mainstream media say that President Bashar Al-Assad is killing his own people in Syria.

According to a BBC report, Assad is giving shelter to 1.6 million internally displaced Syrian refugees in the city of Latakia, who are well looked after.

Is he killing his own people and saving their lives at the same time?

There should be some serious debate about this issue. The strongest case against Assad possibly amounts to an argument that he should have given up territory to rebels rather than attempt to retake it with the inevitable loss of civilian lives.

Much is made of his use of barrel bombs. According to figures from Human Rights Watch, the average number of people killed by barrel bombs was two per bomb.

That does not indicate that barrel bombs are more deadly or indiscriminate than the munitions used by Western armies.

According to the Syrian Observatory, when the death toll in Syria reached 100,000, 45 per cent of those killed were Assad fighters and 15 per cent were rebels. Assad has clearly been facing a powerful armed assault since early on in this war.

David Cameron says that Assad has to step down. He has no right to make Assad's departure a condition of serious peace negotiations, even if Assad is the monster he claims him to be.

If the US/UK insist that Assad has to go, and he refuses, then peace talks come to a standstill. There is no other peace process, so the people of Syria are condemned to war with no end in sight.

The US, with Russia, can enforce a ceasefire between Assad and moderate rebels, after which the Syrian army can lead the assault on IS in Syria.

Mr Cameron should be using his influence to get Barack Obama engaged in serious talks with Vladimir Putin and Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes should be using his influence with Mr Cameron to the same end.

This attack on unions is totally unjustifiable

I AM proud to be a member of a trade union, but I am appalled by what I feel is a war on people like me from this government.

My union Unite has supported me and the manufacturing industry during the recent very tough years.

Unite and our members have fought for better pay, saved jobs (including whole industries), supported skills and apprenticeships, ensured decent health and safety at work and worked closely with companies to raise productivity and bring work back to the UK.

I do not understand why this government is now planning new laws that attack the vital work unions do.

Instead, they should be thanking working people and their unions for putting our shoulders to the wheel during the recession, for working cooperatively with employers to find solutions to problems at work.

My fear is that the government's hatred of unions will result in very bad laws for the British people. The appalling trade union bill will not modernise industrial relations, as the government claims, but will make disputes more bitter.

Were the government truly interested in improving things at work, then they would not be undermining basic rights – and were they truly interested in raising turnouts in strike ballots, they would be bringing modern, secure voting to workplaces. The land of Magna Carta should not be legislating to make lawful strikes all but impossible and our government should not be seeking to silence people on social media.

As senior Tory MP David Davis says, the trade union bill is like something from the dark days of Spanish dictator General Franco. Nobody seems to want this bill – not the police, HR managers, agency labour employers, or civil rights groups.

It has no place in modern-day Britain. It should be scrapped, now.

Cycling in a corridor of uncertainty

THE consultation on Enfield Council's A105 corridor cycle scheme ends on October 9, so you have little time left to have your say. I think it's important that everyone does as radical change is planned – much of it not for the better.

Drivers have had a lot of things their own way for a long time and it's right to facilitate healthier transport. It's right also that cyclists should have a fair crack when using our major routes.

What's not right, however, is to gratuitously delay and inconvenience motorists. You'll no longer be able to pass a stopped bus, or a vehicle trying to turn right. You won't be able to turn left in much of Winchmore Hill if driving north – in particular, you'll have to go through a convoluted route to get to Winchmore Hill station and you'll find yourself unable to turn right out of many sideroads.

It's not just drivers who will suffer. Parking is disappearing along the route, but the scheme's proponents say there is alternative space in sideroads.

So pity the residents there. Most of all, however, fear for anyone trying to get on or off a bus because they will find themselves standing or walking in a cycle lane. That's the reality of the bizarre and dangerous "bus stop boarder" idea. In short – great idea to encourage cycling, catastrophically bad plan for execution. Back to the drawing board, please, chaps.

Austin Spreadbury
Rowantree Road,
Enfield

□ WITH Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes organising meetings to rally support for an unsustainable future, I think we need a moment to consider how a change in infrastructure was handled and the benefits achieved in a neighbouring borough.

Haringey Council and Transport for London invested nearly £4million in Wood Green town centre. You can expect to feel safer crossing the road, cycling and driving. As a pedestrian, I feel more included in the design and layout, and therefore safer, as the environment is more courteous.

This was not achieved by shortening pavements, removing large amount of vehicles from the road and allowing pedestrians less opportunity to cross the road by erecting more guard railing and infrastructure. For me, the safer and more courteous feel comes about from a real sense of social inclusion.

Haringey Council has decluttered open spaces, provided "wider pavements and new, more sensible pedestrian crossings and raised road surfaces to cut driving speeds and prioritise shoppers and visitors at junctions". It was difficult to travel through the town centre after the work began in April 2014 – but the results feel great.

As the people of Enfield begin developing skills as cyclists, we will need to seriously consider the specific design and layout of our busy areas. But believe the words of Andrew Gilligan [London's cycling commissioner] when he says: "In every town centre where it's been done before...trade went up, not down, because those towns were more pleasant places to shop."

Let's not bicker as the Save Our Green Lanes campaign continues to do. The broader argument is how our local infrastructure will benefit the lives of us all.

York Road,
Winchmore Hill

Unfair homes competition

I READ about Enfield's plans to buy houses to "deal with homelessness" (Advertiser, September 23) – in fact, this will boost prices and the council will out-compete first-time buyers.

Speaking with agents along the Hertford Road corridor, the council is purchasing more than five properties a week. It normally outbids first-time buyers even if it offers less because it can complete immediately, whereas residents purchasing with a mortgage normally require 28 days.

Incredibly, I have heard claims that the council's policies will not price out locals because most purchases are east of the A10 – yet that is where the most affordable homes are.

The council should pledge not to exchange faster than 28 days to ensure a level playing field. The council is, after all, using money from council tax payers to potentially bid against them for homes, many of which will be used to house residents from central London being pushed into more affordable homes in Enfield.

I believe there should be legislation to enforce this to ensure that mortgage buyers are not pushed out of the market. There should also be a limit on how many council homes are purchased in each road to ensure retention of a healthy demographic mix and sustainable dispersal of social housing throughout the borough.

North Circular footbridge set to be back in full use next year

A DATE has finally been fixed for the reopening of the staircase of a footbridge crossing the North Circular Road, Mayor of London Boris Johnson has confirmed.

But anyone hoping to use it this year will have to think again – it's not scheduled to be back in operation until March next year.

The bridge, which links Bowes Road and Wilmer Way, was built in 2012 – but since April 2014, the staircase has been closed to pedestrians after a routine inspection by Transport for London (TfL) identified defects.

In a letter sent to Enfield's London Assembly member Joanne McCartney, Mr Johnson confirmed that full access to the footbridge would be reinstated on March 29, 2016, meaning the staircase will have been out of bounds for two years.

The bridge is close to Broomfield secondary and Bowes primary schools, as well as Arnos Grove Tube station.

It has been possible to use the bridge's wheelchair and cycling ramps in the past 17 months, but this takes significantly longer to do and many pupils, parents and commuters have opted to cross the busy North Circular on foot instead.

Ms McCartney, who has been campaigning to get the matter resolved, said: "While it's been a long time coming, I'm happy that local residents finally have a new proposed date for the reopening of the stairs."

"With the footbridge allowing residents to avoid the busy North Circular Road, the closure of the stairs has understandably caused a lot of concern in the local community.

"It's frustrating that local people have had to wait so long for these repairs to be carried out. It's equally frustrating that TfL's communication with residents on this matter has been so poor. I appreciate that this has been a complex issue, but TfL must ensure the local community are fully informed on any restrictions in the future.

"It's now down to TfL to ensure the repairs are carried out successfully so that we can avoid this inconvenience again."

A TfL spokesman explained that the process of identifying and repairing the stairway had been a complex one, but was optimistic the work would be completed "by early next year".

Forty years helping disabled children and still going strong

Fantastic fundraiser: Eileen Collier

By Ruth McKeeruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FUNDRAISING grandmother is celebrating a four-decade milestone with the organisation she founded to raise money for children with disabilities.

Eileen Collier, 86, of Merridene, Grange Park, set up her first antique and collectables fair 40 years ago after joining forces with friends to raise money for good causes.

"We were all married to Scout leaders and after years of raising money for them we decided we wanted to do something different and to raise money for a different cause," said the grandmother-of-five.

Eileen and her friends set up A Little Bit of Everything to raise money to buy equipment for children with disabilities and decided the best way would be to hold sales at which people could splash out on antiques, vintage collectables, clothes and jewellery, all for a good cause.

"Each year we deliver thousands of leaflets to homes asking for residents to donate any unwanted items and people are so generous that I inevitably end up with a garage full of items," she told the Advertiser.

"But it's very well-organised, so I know where everything is."

Over the past four decades, the sales have become an institution and are known far and wide for the high quality of the goods on offer.

"But we never let dealers in before the general public, so local people know that the best things have not been creamed off – it is all there for anyone to buy," added Eileen.

Over the past 40 years, Eileen and her friends have raised £113,944, which has been donated straight to children and families who need the money to buy desperately needed equipment.

And this year Eileen is hoping to raise enough money to buy a specially trained puppy for an autistic child.

The 2015 the sale will be held at St Stephen's church, in London Road, Bush Hill Park, on October 17. Doors will open at 2pm.

Flying the flag in parks

ENFIELD'S parks are still among the best in the country, according to a nationally-recognised benchmark of quality.

A special celebration was held in Grovelands Park, Winchmore Hill, last week to commemorate eight of the borough's parks retaining their special Green Flag status.

The scheme recognises and rewards the best open spaces in the country.

Grovelands, together with Bush Hill Park, Trent Country Park, Jubilee Park, in Edmonton, Oakwood Park, Enfield Town Park, Forty Hall Park, and Pymmes Park, in Edmonton, have maintained their status for another year.

Daniel Anderson, Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment, is pictured officially raising the flag in Grovelands Park with members of various user groups. The council manages many acres of parkland and open spaces and Enfield is one of the greenest boroughs in London.

"This is fantastic news for Enfield, especially for those successful parks," said Mr Anderson.

"Parks staff, along with friends' groups, continue to do a marvellous job in providing first-rate facilities in parks across the borough for everyone to enjoy during the difficult economic period.

"I urge residents this autumn to go out and see what is happening in our parks – entertainment, cycle paths, outdoor gyms, guided walks and new play equipment, all there to be used and enjoyed.

"We will do everything we can to retain our Green Flags and work with the friends' groups to improve the parks experience in Enfield."

Walking away from cancer

Peter completes 62-mile charity challenge after leukaemia scare

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A FITNESS instructor gave cancer the elbow when he completed a tough 62-mile walk in 22 hours just months after completing chemotherapy treatment.

Bush Hill Park resident Peter Davey first noticed something was wrong when he lost the feeling in two of his fingers, but put it down to a sporting injury.

When he started having night sweats, he went to the doctor and last year he was diagnosed with chronic lymphatic leukaemia. He underwent six months of chemotherapy at University College London Hospital in central London.

A former endurance cyclist Mr Davey, 67, of Harman Road, continued walking to keep up his fitness as he went through the treatment and decided to sign up for the Ultra Challenge walk from London to Cambridge.

He said: "I was in Barnet Hospital with a chest infection just after Christmas as well.

"I was determined to do it and I'm lucky I've got the willpower to do it."

He raised £1,000 for Leukaemia

Research and kept the medical specialists informed to prove you can bounce back after chemotherapy.

Mr Davey built up his training, until he was fitting in two 30-mile walks a week.

He had a setback when he developed bursitis on his foot, due to over-exertion, forcing him to taper back his training earlier than anticipated.

Mr Davey is also a Nordic and fitness walking trainer.

He took up Nordic pole walking 10 years ago when he saw other hill walkers in Cumbria using the technique.

He said: "It gives you a full body workout. It was developed for cross country skiers to train in the off season."

He leads fitness classes in Trent Park and Bush Hill Park to encourage the over-45s to get involved in sport and fitness.

He is also an ambassador for Silverfit, which runs health and fitness activities for older people in London.

Mr Davey has just completed another long walk – this time the London Bridgathon, a 12-mile walk over seven bridges in the capital.

Forum supports veterans needing to claim benefits

HELP to steer former members of the military through the minefield of bureaucracy they can sometimes encounter when claiming benefits is being offered in Enfield on Monday morning.

Enfield Over 50s Forum, which runs weekly money advice drop-in sessions for the borough's older people at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, from 10am to 1pm, has arranged for a benefits team from the Royal British Legion to attend.

And the forum has contacted the legion's two branches in the borough and invited members to go along and take advantage of the expert and confidential advice on offer.

Forum president Monty Meth said: "Enfield Council is a signatory to the Armed Forces Community Covenant, which pledges its support for all service and ex-servicemen and women and which the Over 50s Forum has endorsed from the outset.

"They tell us that ex-servicemen and women too often give up in frustration with the nitpicking and petty questioning when applying for benefits when they should be given all the support and help they need.

"The team will be able to provide information about benefits which armed forces veterans are entitled to and which they might not be receiving, or assist in helping manage debts and bills."

Since it started in 2007, the RBL's benefits and money advice service has put £70million back into the pockets of veterans through increases in benefits, writing off debts and gaining grants with each individual getting an extra £2,800 on average.

Avoiding the pitfalls of a Short Lease

by Solicitor Ian Fraser

A short while ago we acted for a young lady called Helen (not her real name) who, like most young people these days, was trying to get herself on the first rung of the property ladder. She had found a small flat in Waltham Forest at a price she could afford, but there was one major drawback. The lease had only 81 years left, which made getting a suitable mortgage offer difficult.

There was another pitfall in that Helen was buying from the personal representative of the late owner and the beneficiaries of the deceased owner's will were getting impatient for their money. Luckily, Helen had managed to borrow funds she needed to buy the flat from her relations but only on a short-term loan. They expected to get their money returned as soon as Helen could arrange a suitable mortgage.

Once Helen became owner of the flat, she had the right to ask her landlord to extend the lease under the 1993 Leasehold Reform Act. The difficulty here was that Helen had to own the property for two years before she could serve her landlord with a notice. Also, at the time that she became eligible to serve the notice, the lease would have fallen below 80 years which meant the landlord could ask for an increased premium due to what is called "marriage value".

Happily, we managed to persuade the personal representative of the deceased person's estate to serve the landlord with the appropriate notice prior to Helen's purchase and, on completion, assign or transfer to Helen the benefit of that notice which meant that Helen did not have to wait the two-year period and could continue to negotiate with her landlord for the premium payable to extend her lease.

Negotiations followed after Helen's purchase and were completed satisfactorily. Helen was then able to apply for a suitable mortgage on the security of the increased leasehold term and was able to repay her relations the money they had kindly loaned her to make her initial purchase.

Transactions of this kind depend on a conveyancer having a clear knowledge and grasp of the Leasehold Reform (Housing and Urban Development) Act 1993. They also entail knowing how to vary the standard terms of a contract for the sale and purchase of leasehold property in such a way that the seller is under a contractual duty to serve a valid notice on the landlord to enable the buyer to be able to continue negotiations following the purchase and extend the lease. Appropriate clauses need to be inserted into the purchase and sale contract, together with appropriately drafted notices and deeds of assignment/transfer to avoid a landlord being able to reject the notice with the unfortunate consequence that, in Helen's case, the buyer would have to wait two years before being able to serve a new notice and have to pay a higher premium for the extended lease due to the addition of marriage value.

Most leases involve two parties, a landlord and tenant. Sometimes, they can involve an additional party, namely a management company or similar entity. Helen's lease involved just the two parties but if there had been a management company, notice would not only have to have been served to the landlord but also on the management company to avoid the landlord being able to reject it as not being served properly under the terms of the 1993 Act.

Buying short-term leases are fraught with difficulties and traps for the unwary and inexperienced, and any purchaser should seek an assurance from his conveyancer that they have a full working grasp of the 1993 Act before confirming instructions to act in any such matter. Stennett Solicitors and Estate Agents specialise in property law. Hunt on for gang after £5,000 scooter is stolen

Valuable vehicle: A Segway scooter similar to the one that was grabbed in Ponders End

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THE theft of a Segway scooter from a teenager in Enfield is believed to be the first robbery in the capital of the two-wheeled, self-balancing electric scooter.

The 18-year-old had the vehicle, worth more than £5,000, stolen after a gang got out of a car and surrounded him before punching him in the face.

The incident happened at about 3pm on Saturday, September 19, when a black Ford Focus stopped in front of the Segway rider outside Ponders End Recreation Ground as he was travelling along High Street.

A gang of four men got out and surrounded him before one of them, described as large and aged about 18, hit him in the face, say police.

He took the scooter from him and put it in the car before heading off towards Edmonton.

Police say the suspect is black and 5ft 11ins tall, with a small beard, and was wearing a grey Nike hooded top.

The rest of the gang are described as black and one of them had a scar under his right eye, while another was wearing a hooded sweatshirt.

Prices for Segway Personal Transporters start at £5,514. They can travel 24 miles on a single battery charge.

Anyone with any information is being asked to call police on 1001, quoting reference 5220050/15, or Crimestoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555 111.

Over 50s all set to join celebration of their age

A CELEBRATION of older people and the contribution they make is being marked in Enfield tomorrow.

The Enfield Over 50s Forum, which campaigns on pensions, health, community care and other issues affecting the borough's older generations, has organised an event to mark United Nations International Day of Older Persons.

The special Celebrate Our Age event is being held at Angel Community Centre, in Raynham Road, Edmonton, between 2pm and 4pm.

The International Day of Older Persons is an annual event celebrated around the world by the United Nations to acknowledge their contribution and achievements.

Helping mark the occasion will be the Freezywater Junior Singers school choir, from St George's Junior School, in Hertford Road, Freezywater.

There will also be a sing-along by Simon Gilbert and the Enfield Community Singers, as well as dancing and tea and cakes.

Christine Whetstone, who was been elected as the forum's new chairwoman, said the presence of the school choir symbolised a commitment to leaving the next and future generations of pensioners a "legacy to be proud of".

She explained: "When we are told that one in four of today's young schoolchildren will live to be 100 years of age, that some 367,000 people will turn 80 this year and that there are currently more than 23 million people aged 50 and over in the UK, whose number is expected to grow to some 30 million over the next 20 years, we recognise there's an inter-generational responsibility with us here and now.

"The International Day of Older Persons aims to raise awareness of the impact of an ageing population and the need to ensure that people can grow old with dignity and continue to participate in society as citizens with full rights," she added. "We can't leave problems such as housing, jobs, low pay, health and social care for someone else to solve in the next decade if we are not to leave our children and grandchildren with a shameful legacy."

Tickets for the Celebrate Our Age event cost £2 and are available by calling 020 8807 2076.

Keep cash safe from con artists warning

FRAUDSTERS and scammers beware – Enfield police and the council have joined forces to warn about the potential tricks used by con artists to try and get hold of people's money.

Tackling scams has been made a priority as part of Keep Safe Week in Enfield, which runs until Friday. Alev Cazimoglu, Enfield Council's cabinet member for health and social care, said: "We want to warn older residents about the potential frauds and scams that could access their money."

"We also want to let people of all ages know that at any time they feel scared or in danger they can take refuge in the safety of local shops and businesses displaying the big H sign in their windows – part of the Community Help Point scheme."

The Ruth Winston Centre, in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, is hosting a Keep Safe and Well event today from 10am to 2pm.

Free health checks as well as advice from police and the fire brigade will be available

Helping hand: Alev Cazimoglu

at the National Older People's Day – taking the theme Keep Safe, Keep Well – at St Monica's church hall, in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, tomorrow, from 10am to 1.30pm. Ms Cazimoglu added: "I want people to have the confidence to report serious incidents of domestic violence or abuse, to be confident that their concerns will be listened to and their reports will be taken seriously."

She said the week was focused on crime and physical safety in the home and aimed to ensure people know about the support available to them.

The Bountagu Hub, in Bounces Road, Edmonton, is hosting a drop-in event on Friday for people at risk or affected by female genital mutilation, running from 10am to 12 noon.

Throughout the week, North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton, is displaying information about ensuring the safety of children and adults in the foyer of the main building in Sterling Way.

Nightingale Academy, Enfield, an AET Academy

Local Secondary School wins an EU funded Erasmus+ bid worth half million euros (£400k)

Nightingale Academy, based in the heart of Enfield, wins an EU funded Erasmus+ bid worth half million euros (£400k) for a youth enterprise and global entrepreneurship project.

The funding will span over 3 years and will enable the Academy to work in collaboration with 7 other countries including Spain, Turkey, the Netherlands, Slovenia, Poland, Romania and France.

In a time of global change, the project will offer an exciting and refreshing outlook for local communities as it will enhance the learning of Global Citizenship such as, active citizenship, empathy, tolerance and responsibility.

The funding will also enable many students from deprived socio-economic backgrounds to visit partner countries.

This project is the latest of many European projects Nightingale Academy has led or been part of in the last few years. Nightingale Academy was awarded full International School status by the British Council, in recognition of its international dimension and global citizenship through a number of activities and visits to overseas schools for students and staff.

The funding will support local partner schools giving children the opportunity to be part of international events and support the diverse community we are proud of in North London.

Nightingale Academy boasts a superb opportunity for their school, as over 60 students will benefit from the project directly by gaining intensive training on various aspects of business and enterprise, such as market research, product design, finance, marketing and presentation.

This will give students a first-hand insight into the intricacies of the world of global entrepreneurship, which will develop a number of soft skills, highly sought after in today's job market.

The school as a whole will also benefit, as many activities will involve all Nightingale students in international days and the hosting of the final visit by students and staff from all partner schools.

Principal, Ann Palmer stated, "The funding will truly put Edmonton and Enfield on the map for thousands of young people across Europe, who will eventually spend one week in the area. This project is a true reflection on a global market we are proud of".

Get qualified with the Adult Learning Academy

Certificates, Certificates and more Certificates, seems to be what many employers are shouting for today.

Years ago, experience would suffice but today employers and the government are looking for qualifications in almost anything i.e. even making coffee for the public you need a Food Hygiene Certificate!

That's how it is. One may say it is a good thing to have many certificates and others feel it's just too much.

Whatever the argument, we have to meet the requirements and regulations in order to do what is needed from us.

Right? Hence, one of the reasons, The Adult Learning Academy was set up in 2010 was to do just that for adults. To basically provide courses that would meet government regulations and employer requirements.

These courses include Childcare L3, Security Guarding, English and Maths, First Aid, Teacher Training, Childminding, Teaching Assistant, Assessing, Management, Health & Social Care, Apprenticeships, CV Writing and GCSEs etc.

Most courses run either during school time 10-3pm or in the evenings and is accredited by well-known Awarding bodies such as City & Guilds and EDEXCEL.

If you would like to find out more about getting qualified in a particular course, feel free to call one of our advisors on 020 8804 4114 or visit our website www.alacademy.co.uk

Introducing your local Headteacher to help you choose the right school for your child...

"Freedom to flourish"

At Palmers Green High School we are celebrating 110 years of educating girls, challenging them to aim for the stars whilst enjoying our happy family atmosphere. As headmistress at PGHS since 2002 I look forward to welcoming back alumnae from the different generations as they share their memories, present experiences and future plans. The school motto, 'By Love, Serve One Another' was carefully chosen by our founder, Miss Alice Hum, and it still epitomises our special ethos where each individual is nurtured, successes are celebrated and contribution to the community is greatly valued.

Lower School classes benefit hugely from the encouragement and expertise of their class teachers and teaching assistants. Favourable teaching group sizes, light and airy classrooms and access to senior school facilities all lead to an inspirational learning environment. This is enriched by specialist teaching in Art, Design & Technology, Drama, French, German, Latin, Music, PE and Russian - frequently in half class groups.

In Senior School small class sizes (an average of only 10 at GCSE) and a broad range of extra-curricular activities enriches the girls' experience. New year 7s enjoy a three-day residential PGL trip and friendships are formed quickly and easily. Excellent teamwork helped our Year 10 pupils to win the 2014 London Schools Hydrogen Challenge, in a world record-breaking time. In 2015 GCSE candidates attainment at A*/A was 77.2%, placing them amongst the top performers in the country.

Ranked 1st in the Sunday Times league table for Small Schools for the past five years, parents can be reassured that Palmers Green High School girls not only attain excellent results in relation to their abilities and aptitudes, but also grow in confidence and poise as members of this very special school community. Here a plethora of opportunities ensures that our girls have freedom to flourish.

St Mary's CE High School

Tel: 01992 629124

I was appointed to the Headship of St Mary's in April 2004 and have enjoyed being part of the significant changes that have led to the success that the school experiences today. St Mary's is well known for its high standards in the local community and received an 'outstanding' judgement during its SIAMS Church school inspection in May 2015 which followed a 'good' judgement from Ofsted in January 2015.

The school offers a curriculum tailored to support the highest of aspirations for our students. The curriculum has both vocational and academic options as well as an extensive programme of extracurricular activities. Students have access to a wide range of activities such as trips to Paris and Germany; skiing, archery, football and athletics; and Study Clubs each day. St Mary's has the Phoenix Performing Arts and Thunder Basket Ball Academies promoting student involvement in the performing arts and sport.

St Mary's CE High School is recognised for its inclusion agenda and diverse community. Students, staff and visitors speak about the positive welcome that they receive. The school has a strong commitment to ensuring that every child can access a high quality education provision, designed to meet their needs whilst providing every opportunity to succeed. 99% of our students tell us that they are happy at St Mary's and that they feel safe. 98% of our parents/carers tell us that the school keeps their child safe.

In 2010, the school moved to the fantastic new buildings on Lieutenant Ellis Way. The new buildings provide an excellent learning environment with a sports hall, gymnasium, drama studios, photographic suite, extensive playing fields and a dedicated sixth form centre. In addition each classroom has interactive technology, and the IT/computing facilities include an Apple Mac suite for media and music technology.

The school genuinely serves the local community by being the Lead School for our Local School's Partnership and the Broxbourne West Children's Centre Group. These groups provide services to support families with children aged 0-19 that attend St Mary's and local primary schools.

We are currently offering open mornings for post 16 and Year 5 & 6 students for Sept 2016 and 2017 entry. Please ring the school on 01992 629124 to reserve a place. Our Sixth Form & Leadership Centre Opening evening is on Tuesday 6th October 6-8pm. We are offering one, two or three year programmes with academic, vocational and professional pathways. All are welcome and we look forward to welcoming you to St Mary's soon.

"Only the best will do"

May I take this opportunity to offer you a very warm welcome to Nightingale Academy, an AET sponsored academy. Nightingale Academy was established in September 2010 as a transforming academy. I feel immensely privileged to have been appointed as the Principal, in September 2015, to such a highly professional team of staff and some incredibly exceptional students. Nightingale is a culturally and ethnically vibrant community that is committed to succeeding in our journey to be an outstanding school, in the heart of Enfield, which secures the highest possible standards.

Our aim is to create an inclusive learning community where every learner, regardless of their ability, excels and fulfils their potential. We hold a passionate belief in the power of learning at the heart of the Academy's practice. Our aims are to equip young people for fulfilling lives by growing and sustaining strong self-esteem, good interpersonal skills and confidence as independent learners. With all our students, we aim to motivate and raise their expectations. This is expected in addition to securing the highest standards of teaching and learning.

We have much to celebrate as extensive work has been undertaken over the last couple of years to improve the school environment. The newly refurbished academy boasts amazing facilities, with state of the art sports hall and outside pitches, a refurbished theatre and music facilities and our tremendous Learning Resource Centre.

As a Principal with experience of leading an outstanding school, since my arrival, I have been particularly impressed with the quality of care and guidance provided by the students. My aim is very clear, "expect nothing but the best". With our renewed emphasis on high standards, we have a mission to support not only those students who need additional support, but to fully extend our most able. With our excellent links with employers and universities, this is being achieved.

I look forward to meeting you all.

My name is Maureen Cobbett and I have been Headteacher here since the beginning of September - a short time but absolutely amazing. I have been warmly welcomed by both staff and pupils and I know that if you come to The Latymer School you too will have a rewarding time.

We are a grammar school and as such achieve outstanding results. If you enjoy learning, you want to achieve and to go to the best universities, then you must come here. Staff at Latymer make sure you are supported to achieve the very best you can and meet your academic goals.

However, studying at Latymer is not just about academic success. I have been truly astonished at the varied and exciting opportunities available to our students. There is a strong tradition of music, drama and sport here and every chance to take part in physical activities, in shows, play in the orchestra, sing in the choir or be part of the backstage team. We run trips to many places, from Iceland to Marrakesh and aim to provide a wide range of educational opportunities outside of the classroom.

The school was founded in 1624 by Edward Latymer who had the interests of the 'poor boys of Edmonton' at heart. We have upheld his vision as a caring and supportive school and our charity work extends around the world.

If you would like to know more about The Latymer School, I would encourage you to visit our website www.latymer.co.uk and I look forward to welcoming you to our school.

Hi-de-Hi! star realises ambition to play comedy hero Laurel

Here's another fine mess...

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

HE was one half of arguably the world's greatest comedy double act – Laurel and Hardy.

But a very different side to the squeaky-voiced, rubber-faced, dim-witted Stan Laurel we all know and love is revealed in the one-man play And This is My Friend Mr Laurel at Finchley's artsdepot on Saturday evening.

Jeffrey Holland, star of TV sitcoms Hi-de-Hi! and You Rang M'Lord, portrays the comic in a production which lays bare the difference between the hilariously gormless deadpan character Laurel developed for the cameras and his worldly wise, real-life self.

The play is set in the bedroom of Oliver Hardy, dying after suffering a stroke and unable to communicate.

With just an empty bed frame, a fold-up chair and a Derby hat for props, Holland recreates a final one-sided imaginary conversation between Laurel, then 66, and his comedy partner, chatting and reminiscing about the highs and lows of their careers, from problems with studio bosses, to ex-wives and their personal relationship.

It has long been Holland's ambition to play his comedy idol and the 69-year-old co-wrote the play with award-winning playwright Gail Louw.

His fascination for the comedy genius began as a boy at Saturday morning picture shows and later the talented mimic began featuring Laurel among his repertoire of impressions.

"I loved the way Olly thought he was smarter than Stan when in fact he was far more stupid, it always made me laugh," he explained. "They became my friends, metaphorically speaking, of course. I always looked forward to the Laurel and Hardy film and if there wasn't one, I was bereft."

"The play is a funny and often poignant tale of their friendship, love and dedication and Laurel's complex genius which was the driving force behind one of Hollywood's greatest comedy double acts."

Great Scott! There's life on Mars

THE MARTIAN (12A 141 mins)

IN space, everyone can hear you scream and whenever Ridley Scott is nestled in the director's chair, you can be certain his actors will be issuing bloodcurdling shrieks. In 1979, he unleashed a merciless killing machine on the unsuspecting crew of the Nostromo, giving birth to the Alien franchise.

Three years later, the future was exceedingly bleak for Harrison Ford's blade runner and, more recently, scientists aboard the spaceship Prometheus came face-to-face with an extra-terrestrial force of unimaginable power.

The life expectancy of characters in Scott's films can often be measured in hours rather than days or years.

So it comes as no surprise that in the opening 15 minutes of The Martian, adapted from the bestselling novel by Andy Weir, the director apparently kills off his leading man during a ferocious sandstorm on the red planet.

Unusually, the hero survives and draws upon his scientific knowledge to manufacture water and oxygen to sustain his solitary existence until a rescue mission can be mustered.

The film opens with the six-strong crew of the Ares 3, led by Commander Melissa Lewis (Jessica Chastain), gathering samples.

Sensors pick up an approaching storm and Lewis gives the order to evacuate. During the trek back to the ship, botanist Mark Watney (Matt Damon) is hit by flying debris.

"I know you don't want to hear this, Mark's dead," crew member Beck (Sebastian Stan) informs Lewis, who reluctantly blasts off with the rest of her team – Johanssen (Kate Mara), Martinez (Michael Pena) and Vogel (Aksel Hennie).

SURVIVOR: Matt Damon

They begin the long journey back to mission control. Little do they realise that back on Mars, Watney is alive.

"I gotta figure out how to grow three years' worth of food on a planet where nothing grows," Mark mumbles, recording a video diary.

Back on Earth, NASA administrator Teddy Sanders (Jeff Daniels), director of Mars missions Vincent Kapoor (Chiwetel Ejiofor) and Ares 3 flight director Mitch Henderson (Sean Bean) cut corners to let Mark know the cavalry is coming.

The Martian bears obvious similarities to the Oscar-winning thriller Gravity in both set-up and execution and Scott employs the 3D format to dazzling effect in turbo-charged action sequences.

However, this is primarily a meditation on the endurance of the human spirit and in these quieter moments, Drew Goddard's lean script and lead actor Damon hold us spellbound.

"I'm not going to die here," Mark tells himself as he faces each obstacle with gritty determination, raising his spirits (and ours) with flashes of humour including a running joke about Commander Lewis' disco-heavy music collection.

Cinematographer Dariusz Wolski envisages Mars as a vast, barren landscape of shifting red sand.

As Mark's oxygen supply depletes, we hold our breath, hoping for a miracle.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. KANE'S JOY AT CITY TRIUMPH

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HARRY KANE was quick to praise the efforts of his Tottenham Hotspur teammates after the striker finally ended his goal drought by scoring in Saturday's stunning 4-1 Premier League triumph at home to Manchester City.

Despite scoring twice for England, Kane had failed to find the net in seven previous appearances for Spurs this season – but the reigning Professional Footballers' Association young player of the year put that right by grabbing the third goal in a remarkable victory which resulted in City being knocked off the top of the table.

The visitors actually took the lead through Kevin de Bruyne, but Eric Dier got Tottenham back on level terms prior to the interval – with the goal being allowed to stand despite a clear offside in the build-up – and second-half strikes from Toby Alderweireld, Kane and Erik Lamela wrapped up the points.

The win means that Spurs have not lost in the league since defeat at new leaders Manchester United on the opening day of the season, and Kane is delighted with the way that the team is progressing.

"It was an incredible performance as a team," he said. "Everyone was focused on what they had to do, and we put in a real statement of a performance."

"Eric scored a very important goal on the stroke of half-time, and what a goal it was. We said at half-time to go out and bring a lot of energy and bring the momentum of that goal with us.

"We got the early goal in the second half and took it from there. We never looked like conceding after that. The defence was great and everyone put in a shift.

"City were top of the league at the start of play and we showed what we're capable of. We've got a young team, a very energetic team and we're excited. We're enjoying every moment and days like this will give us even more confidence."

And Kane also hopes that his goal will help to silence some of the critics who had began to question whether the striker would be able to live up to his exploits of last season – when he scored 31 goals in all competitions.

"Maybe I shut up a few people who have been talking over the past few weeks," he added. "Only seven games have gone and a few people called me a one-season wonder. People can judge me at the end of the season and we will go from there."

"I have to stay focused but it was great to score. When you score like I did last season it becomes a drug and when someone takes it away from you then you want to get it back. You want to score again and it was a good feeling to score again."

"It is frustrating to be criticised. I kind of use it to get my juices flowing and to prove these people wrong. I have had to prove people wrong throughout my career to get where I am."

Breaking his duck: Harry Kane finally scored his first goal of the season for Spurs against Manchester City

Borough seal their first win in the league

HARINGEY BOROUGH'S long wait for their first win in Ryman League Division One North came to an end on Saturday when they won 1-0 at Romford to climb off the foot of the table.

Borough have struggled to adapt to life at the higher level since winning the Essex Senior League title last season, but a goal from Jorge Sambu saw them finally break their duck as they picked up a much-needed three points.

The hosts made much the brighter start and Robbie Farrell had a shot deflected just wide on seven minutes, before Borough keeper Ashley Harris did well to save Matt Frew's header from a George Woodward corner six minutes later.

Harris was again called into action on 17 minutes as he tipped the ball round the post after Chris Barry had picked up possession on the right and cut inside before curling a shot goalwards.

However, Borough managed to weather the storm and took the lead from their first attack of note on 21 minutes as the home defence failed to clear a corner and Sambu pounced by turning the ball low into the net.

Romford reacted well to falling behind and Ryan Boswell was denied by another good save from Harris, who was then nearly caught out by a lob from Nick Reynolds which he just managed to get fingertips to.

The second half proved to be an even affair, with Borough enjoying a far greater share of possession as much of the action was played out in midfield with the two sides cancelling each other out.

The expected onslaught from Romford in the closing stages failed to materialise and the visitors were able to comfortably hold on for the win.

Saturday's triumph saw Borough build on a hugely encouraging display on Tuesday last week when they picked up a 0-0 draw at home to table-topping Cray Wanderers.

Haringey Borough launch their FA Trophy campaign with a trip to Folkestone Invicta in the preliminary round on Saturday (3pm).

Fairhurst and Martin sign new deals

WILL FAIRHURST and Will Martin have become the latest two players to commit their futures to the London Skolars as the rugby league club continue to build their squad for the 2016 campaign.

The Kingstone Press Championship One season came to a conclusion earlier this month, and the Skolars have wasted little time in beginning their preparations for next year by agreeing new contracts with a number of key players.

And that has continued in the past week with Fairhurst and Martin – who were both consistent performers last season putting pen to paper on new deals.

A club statement said: "Will Martin was a strong force at the back end of the season and became an extremely reliable member of the team at prop. He is always one to put his hand up for the hard carries and very rarely missed tackles as he made seven appearances, crossing the try line twice along the way."

"Will Fairhurst came to the Skolars as a bit of an unknown. Advancing through the Warrington academy system and then on to Australia, where he consistently played in the Queensland Cup for Tweet Head Seagulls, it was obvious that he had talent."

"He proved that talent this year by making nine appearances at the start of the season but unfortunately he had a shocking run of injuries in the second half of the season."

"He firstly suffered a medial ligament tear and subsequently missed a large portion of the summer after keyhole surgery."

"He made his return in the annual Friday Night Lights game but was cruelly struck down with a rupture of his achilles, requiring more surgery and ruling him out for the rest of the season."

"We all wish him well for the long rehab journey and look forward to seeing him fit and healthy and playing for the Skolars in 2016."
